President Biden Announces the American Families Plan

In a recent speech, President Joe Biden announced the American Families Plan, which is a proposed $1.8 trillion legislative package. The proposed bill includes an investment of around $1 trillion in families, education and workers. The bill also includes around $800 billion in enhanced tax credits that would extend the benefits included in the recently passed American Rescue Plan Act for lower- and middle-income workers and families.

In general, this proposed plan would:

- Provide direct support to children and families—The bill would provide direct support for families to ensure that low- and middle-income families spend no more than 7% of their income on child care, and that the child care they access is of high quality. The bill would also provide a national comprehensive paid family and medical leave program.
- Extend tax cuts for American workers and families with children—The bill would extend tax cuts in the American Rescue Plan Act that benefit lower- and middle-income workers and families. In addition, the American Families Plan would extend the expanded health insurance tax credits included in the American Rescue Plan.
- Offer free preschool and community college—The bill heavily invests in education, and would provide universal preschool to three- and four-year-olds. The bill would also provide Americans two years of free community college.

According to an update from the White House, President Biden will propose a set of measures to increase the amount of taxes that the wealthiest Americans pay, while ensuring that no one making $400,000 per year or less will see a tax increase. This bill would be partially funded by proposed higher taxes on wealthy Americans.
